

Training and skills development!

For us, work-related training is all about getting the chance to develop and keep up with the future of the labor market. Therefore, it is important for both the individual's and the industry's adaptability. It increases the appeal of occupations within the food industry, which benefits the industry in general.

Employees need more training and skills development in the workplace, regardless of the employment situation and the working hours. This makes even temporary employment increasingly secure as it contains opportunities to develop and learn.

A sustainable work-life requires employment security, a good working environment, evolving work tasks as well as effective adjustment support. Therefore it is important to have a political system that creates conditions that support continuous training and skills development.

We want

- The members to be guaranteed skills development
- Jobs within the food production industry to gain status
- Better opportunities for job transition

On the website Hela svaret we explain further what we find important.

www.livs.se

 @LivsSverige

 facebook.com/livs.se

